Amy Beasley, DNP, RN, CHPN

Amy Beasley, DNP, RN, CHPN, is an Assistant Professor at the University of Alabama at Birmingham. Her interest is in palliative care access especially in rural communities and underserved populations.

She earned a BS in Finance in 2003 and worked in the financial industry prior to her BSN in May 2008. Subsequently, she earned a MSN in Case Management in 2011 and a DNP in 2012. She has returned to school to earn a PhD in Nursing in an effort to contribute to new knowledge in palliative and hospice care in the future.

Dr. Beasley began her career as a nurse in the emergency department, working with both adult and pediatric populations. In 2011, she transitioned to a role as an outpatient hospice nurse at Hospice of West Alabama in Tuscaloosa, Alabama. She then served in a case management capacity before moving to a full time faculty role. She maintains a faculty practice at the same agency working in the compliance and performance improvement tasks. She is certified as a hospice and palliative nurse, and continues to focus on the importance of certification in her agency.

Personally, Amy is married and has three little boys that keep her busy with swimming and camping.
