"The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is that good men do nothing". Attributed to Edmund Burke circa 1920's temperance movement.

I was stunned when Dylan Klebold and Eric Harris went on a shooting spree in Columbine High School Colorado now almost thirty years ago. I believe we all were. It seemed so senseless. How had these young men become so far gone down the road of isolation and hate?

Parkland, Vegas, Sutherland Springs, Orlando, Sandy Hook... churches, schools, college campuses, country music concerts all have become the last resting place of men, women and children who started their day going to church, to class, to dance and enjoying their favorite singers amongst friends.

What was once unimaginable has become frequent news.

I am not here to provoke an attack on the right to bear arms, to own a handgun or a rifle to hunt, to have for home protection, or to use recreationally at the range. But I am here asking- what are common sense boundaries for the kind of weaponry that the public has to purchase? Does a 19 year old who is not a member of the police force or armed services ever need to own an AR-15 under any circumstance? How about an RPG? A Mac-10? Why is there resistance by politicians for stricter universal background checks?

It goes far beyond gun laws and manufacturers. How are our communities caring and tending to the needs of those with mental and behavioral health risks? How are we living together in community? How does 24/7 media coverage impact mass shooting events are covered and seek to copycat? And maybe the question that most matters here in this church periodical... what does one who seeks to follow Jesus to the cross, through the midst of human suffering and violence, have to say to us as disciples about how we should react to violence in our time?

I am here to confess. I confess that I am disgusted that I have not spoken and acted sooner. I am wondering why it took me so long, as I anguished over the shooting of six and seven year old children, (first and second grade boys and girls) as they went to their primary school in Sandy Hook... and still I did nothing but pray. I prayed for families, victims, shooters. We held vigils. I asked God, "Why Lord? Why does such evil exist among humankind?" And as these seventeen kids died in Florida with their teachers three years later the only question I had left from God was: How long, Scott, how long will you remain silent in the face of such violence?

I may not be able to change politicians' minds. And I know that I do not possess all the answers, not by a mile, but I do know this... too much innocent blood has been spilled on my watch. To that end, beyond vigils I will pledge to try and work with our own civic leaders and population to speak about ways to care for all those living in our communities without exception in faith, in hope, and love... that 'Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth' prayer I speak might also be the prayer I live.

What can we do?

On Sunday, March 18th we will have a Community Response to Mass Shootings Public Forum- 4:00pm to 5:30pm in the Sanctuary and Parlor. We will have civic and religious leaders to participate in an open panel about the issues of violence in our nation and in our communities.

On Saturday, March 24th please consider joining my wife and I for the march for Our Lives inspired by the surviving students of the Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School at 11:00am at the Daley Plaza Chicago as part of your Lenten Journey. Please let me know if you'd like to attend that we might organize car pooling and or commuter transportation.

Caring for Creation

Fasting from Carbon during the Lenten Season

Lent is a season to slow down and reflect on our lives. For some, it is a time to make a sacrifice by giving up an activity, food or drink. For others, it may mean taking on new, positive actions.

In an interesting and earth-friendly 'twist' on Lent, the New England Regional Environmental Ministries (NERM) offers an Ecumenical Lenten Carbon Fast. The goal of the carbon fast is to help Christians be more mindful of climate change and the ways we all contribute to it in our daily lives. Over the Lenten season, individuals can sign up to receive NERM's daily e-mails. The e-mails provide a carbon-related issue to contemplate and a corresponding action you can take.

For example, the Contemplation for Day 7 is:

Bring to mind a voluntary choice you have freely made to constrain yourself from some action you very much wanted to take, but you realized would (even in some small way) harm creation. How do you understand that choice? How do you frame it? Was it a sacrifice? Do you regard it as befriending a new discipline or commitment? Even in a small way, do you experience yourself as called by God to do this?

And the Action for Day 7 is:

Avoid eating meat and cheese one day a week during the rest of lent (and beyond if you feel called). If everyone in the U.S. did this, it would be the equivalent of taking 7.6 million cars off the road for an equivalent time. Read The Meat Eater's Guide for a concise, yet detailed explanation and other suggestions.

Already doing this or feeling ambitious? Eating locally requires fewer fossil fuels to transport your food, eating seasonally requires less energy for refrigeration, eating organically helps restore soil ecosystems that pull carbon out of the atmosphere.

If you'd like to sign-up for Ecumenical Lenten Carbon Fast e-mails, go to <https://www.macucc.org/carbonfast>.
