“The public sector needs to cut costs, do more with less, improve efficiency and increase the quality of services delivered to citizens.” We’ve been hearing this since 2010 and all Healthcare Trusts and Local Authorities are continuing to do this. However, simply cutting the budget and improving efficiency within individual organisations is not enough, there needs to be a more integrated approach to the delivery of services.

In line with the Health and Social Care Act, Public Health functions were transferred from the NHS to Local Government and since then we have begun to see a different landscape for how care is delivered. However, the path to a fully integrated care programme is not straight forward and we still have a long way to go, although there are some exemplar examples to learn from of which many will be talked about at this meeting.

The Excellence In Healthcare and Excellence In Local Government meeting will bring together senior leaders from both sectors to network with each other and discuss the current hot topics including:

- The effect of Sustainability and Transformation Plans (STPs)
- The challenges around interoperability
- How to embark on outcome based commissioning
- What are Trusts doing to be innovative along care pathways?
- The impact of the Transfer of Care Initiative
- How to commission and integrate services
- The integrated care records conundrum
- What is the best way to go about implementing, using and maintaining digital communications and mobile working?

During this meeting, all attendees will be able to share their own experiences and the challenges they are currently facing. In addition, you will then have the opportunity to look at different ways of addressing these problems and an overall look at where we were, where we are and what needs to be done to get to where we need to be.

Having access to information in real-time is now a part of our daily lives, yet when it comes to accessing data relating to our Health and Wellbeing, there seems to be a severe lag. The information is available and the technology exists to access it so what is causing this delay?

I now pronounce you...

For too long technology has been the focus and everything else has had to fit around it, including the issue it was often meant to be solving. With patient flow rising to the top of Trust's agendas, the need for technology and behaviour to marry together to maximise flow has never been more real. However, this needs to be underpinned by clinical leadership to ensure that the patient is at the centre of care.

This presentation will talk about what Doncaster and Bassetlaw NHS Foundation Trust are doing to enable this new way of working and thinking.
