

Free Winter Education Series

Senior Corps RSVP of Cape Cod & the Islands presents:
“Shellfish Aquaculture Practices and Their Growing Importance on Cape Cod”

Wednesday, February 21, 2018 from 11AM - 12 PM

Jacob Sears Memorial Library
23 Center Street, East Dennis

with Joshua Reitsma
Marine Program Specialist
Barnstable County Cooperative Extension
Woods Hole Sea Grant

Shellfish aquaculture has grown dramatically in recent years and has economic and potentially ecological importance to Cape Cod. Regional growing practices are important to commercial shellfish farms and municipal efforts to restore or enhance natural populations of shellfish. Efforts to propagate shellfish also provide increased volunteer opportunities.

Seating is limited. Call to register.

Deeply Rooted

Wednesday, March 14

2 - 4 PM

John Coykendall, a renowned heirloom seed saver, labors to preserve and learn about growing techniques, recipes and folktales of a Louisiana farming community. By preserving seeds, he is able to pass on a legacy our ancestors passed on to us.

Thank you to Cape Cod Museum of Art for use of the D'Allesandro Auditorium.
