Greetings from University Park Elementary School,

I'm writing to invite you to join me for a one-night screening of the award-winning education documentary Most Likely to Succeed at University Park Elementary School 2300 S. St. Paul St. Denver 80210 at 5:30 followed by a candid conversation about innovating education for our future.

Most Likely to Succeed premiered at the 2015 Sundance Film Festival and has been featured in over two dozen top film festivals, and screened in over 1,000 communities across the country since September (2015). It has been named "among the best edu-documentaries ever produced" by Education Week, and called a "smart and engaging look at education in the 21st century" by The Hollywood Reporter.

Our school system was designed in 1893. This feature-length documentary examines the history of education in the United States, revealing the growing shortcomings of conventional education methods in today's innovative world. The film explores compelling new approaches that revolutionize teaching as we know it. After seeing the film, the way you think about "school" will never be the same.
