2017 A Year of Revival in the Diocese of Iowa

From the Bishop

In emphasizing mission during this coming year and beyond, and as our personal preparation for our part in that mission, I am calling us all to gather across the Diocese in 2017 in a series of evening Revival worship services, known as Revival 2017. It is my prayer that these will be opportunities for all of us to rekindle the gifts of the Holy Spirit that were given to us at baptism, to hear in a fresh way how much God loves us, and to let the Spirit guide us - each and all of us- in the transforming work in our society which awaits us.

The Revival is ambitious. It will replace my regular visitation schedule which will resume in 2018. I intend with God's help, to visit twenty areas throughout the year - inviting one or two congregations to come together on a Friday evening, and then going to another on Saturday night and making that congregation the location for a regional confirmation on the Sunday morning. In the course of the year, and by the time we gather again at Convention in October 2017, I will have been with every congregation in revival. Revival 2017 will need volunteers for prayer, music, logistics and hosting, liturgy participation and nominations for those to give testimony and share in the various prayer stations envisioned for the evenings. A steering team for preaching and worship leading is being developed, and I am grateful to Kathleen Milligan, Elizabeth Popplewell, Lydia Bucklin, and Meg Wagner for their assistance in this. My hope is that the leadership team at each location be staffed locally. This is important for follow up.

Watch for information to help with planning and advertising for the Revival 2017 at your location.

In the peace and love of Christ,

+Alan

The Rt. Rev. Alan Scarfe
Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Iowa

#bluestone #revival2017

At the end of the 164th Annual Convention of the Diocese of Iowa these blue stones left Des Moines and began their journey to congregations all across the state. They are a reminder of our baptismal waters and baptismal living. Everyone was encouraged to share the stones with others and take pictures of them out in the world where you are living out your baptismal promises. We invite everyone to use the hashtags #bluestone #revival2017 to post your pictures of your stone and ministry on social media.

Connect with Evangelism Matters through live webcast, on-demand November 18-19

Congregations, dioceses, groups, and individuals can connect with Evangelism Matters without traveling to Texas for the groundbreaking event. The Board of Directors will connect with the conference virtually. Lizzie Gillman, Elizabeth Popplewell, Lydia Bucklin, Tom Early, and Meg Wagner will be attending in person.

Evangelism Matters is for those seeking a place to share, learn, and grow the Church's capacity and passion for evangelism. Rising at a critical moment in the life of The Episcopal Church and as a part of the Jesus Movement, this conference will engage participants through inspiring presentations, valuable workshops and resources, and shared experiences in a community setting. The conference is hosted by the Diocese of Dallas, and the Church of the Transfiguration, Dallas, TX. Co-sponsored by Forward Movement and the Presiding Bishop's Office, this two-day conference will equip and empower evangelists for the journey ahead—communicating the Good News of Jesus in the Episcopal tradition.

Live webcast

Key portions of Evangelism Matters (like the plenary sessions led by Presiding Bishop Michael Curry and The Rev. Canon Stephanie Spellers) will be live webcast to allow for individual and group viewing.

The live, free webcast will be accessible here <http://www.evangelismmatters.org> and it does not require advance registration or password. Those seeking to watch in Spanish may follow the Facebook live feed here: <https://www.facebook.com/latinosepiscopales/>

On demand will be available following the event www.evangelismmatters.org and here www.episcopalchurch.org

Congratulations to our friends in Swaziland!

Our Swaziland companions had a lot to celebrate at the 2016 Swaziland Environmental Authority Temvelo Awards on October 27. Our heartfelt congratulations go out to Mr. Mncedisi Masuku for winning the Young Eco Hero Award for 2016 and to our companion Bishop, The Rt. Rev. Ellinah Wamukoya for winning the Eco Faith Based Award 2016.

The Temvelo Awards acknowledge, recognize and honor businesses, organizations, communities and individuals who have demonstrated exceptional environmental stewardship by dedicating themselves and their talents to the protection of the environment. The Temvelo awards program provides competition and incentives to expand and improve environmental protection efforts.

Episcopal Relief & Development Responds to Hurricane Matthew

Episcopal Relief & Development is supporting disaster response efforts in Haiti and several Episcopal dioceses in the United States following Hurricane Matthew, which blasted through the Caribbean as a Category 4 storm before moving up the Atlantic coast and causing damage from Florida through southern Virginia. In the US, churches in affected areas are leveraging their existing ministries and community relationships to provide specialized services and care for people who are displaced from their homes.

At the Convention Eucharist, $1648.56 was given to Episcopal Relief and Development.
