Emerging Technology Collection

As technology advances, it becomes necessary to stay up to date with the latest devices that could crop up in dealing with patrons, professional development, or improving programs and services. It was time for the previous collection to retire so that we could begin to build another.

In the last issue of the Wave, there was an article with an opportunity to enter to win one of these decommissioned devices. Thank you to all who participated, and congratulations to the winners!

For each device, the list of entrees was put through a randomizer to determine the winners, so say congrats to your colleagues!
