SPRINGTIME REMINDERS FOR YOUR DOBERMAN

Yard and garden hazards. The insecticides, herbicides, pesticides and fertilizers many people apply in the spring to bring their lawns and gardens back to life are full of chemicals that are dangerous for pets.

Take care not to allow your dog access to areas of your property where chemicals have been applied, and be sure to store all potentially toxic products out of reach.

Pretty poisons. Before you stock up on seeds or visit your local nursery, make sure you know which plants, flowers and greenery are toxic to your pet if ingested.

Warm weather parasites. Work with a veterinarian in your area to decide what kinds of parasite preventives your pets need to keep them free of fleas, ticks, heartworm and other parasites throughout the spring and summer months.
