Author: Jim Mathews, Principle Nearterm Corporation

Backlogs in your Revenue Cycle?

A cash acceleration team may be the answer.

There are many explanations for sluggish cash performance and obviously, understanding causes may be useful in preventing recurrence. Meantime, you have a backlog and the challenge is to get caught up. That's where a cash acceleration team can be helpful.

In order to be effective, a cash acceleration team is a highly customized temporary external resource allocation of seasoned professionals with the right credentials, experience and skillset to help you get current and stay there. Team disciplines might include Coders, AR Specialists, Billers, Collectors, Auditors and others. Size of the team depends mostly on volume, scope of work and how quickly the organization wants to capture an expressed opportunity but other factors may come into play as the team is customized and designed. Team resources can work remotely or at your facility or some combination. Successful teams are closely managed and can redirect focus as project demand dictates.