Nominations Sought for Henderson's Heart of the City Award

Henderson, Nev. – The City of Henderson is accepting nominations for its Heart of the City Award, which recognizes individuals who have performed exceptional acts of kindness. The award is administered by the city's Be Kind Committee, which promotes the benefits associated with incorporating acts of kindness into the mindset and way of life for the people who live, learn, work and play in the City of Henderson.

The award is presented annually to a citizen or city employee who has demonstrated distinctive service or acts of kindness that have enriched the lives of the community. Nominations are open to people of all ages and are accepted through Oct. 1. Printable nomination forms are available online at cityofhenderson.com. The award will be presented during the city's annual Color Me Kind 5K, to be held Nov. 19 at Cornerstone Park, 1600 Wigwam Pkwy.

"From students and volunteers to coaches and community leaders, Henderson is fortunate to have so many exceptional people who incorporate kindness into their daily lives," said Mayor Andy Hafen. "The Heart of the City Award is a visible and tangible way for us to recognize a deserving individual who goes above and beyond not because they have to, but because they choose to. To me, kindness is an integral part of our premier community."
