Federal representatives reach out to Henderson business community

In August, during a congressional break when federal leaders return to their districts, HCC staff and key chamber member representatives met with U.S. Senator Dean Heller as well as U.S. Congresswoman Jacky Rosen to discuss the state of small business and federal issues impacting them and their ability to grow.

Discuss topics with leaders ranged from health care, overtime regulations, tax reform and Yucca Mountain to which both candidly shared perspectives on an array of issues from the federal vantage point.

It was an ideal opportunity for the HCC to lay groundwork for HCC's return to Washington D.C. in 2018 and, more importantly, provide an opportunity to our member businesses to directly share concerns and opportunities with federal leaders.
