Tina Rice Rejoins CCCU as Mortgage Administration and Intelligence Officer

[Las Vegas, Nev.] March 29, 2017 - Clark County Credit Union (CCCU) recently hired a familiar face: former credit union Controller Tina Rice has rejoined the management team. She will be responsible for creating efficiencies within the mortgage department, from maximizing software utilization to identifying breakdowns in processes and implementing improvements.

“We are very pleased that Tina has come back to Clark County Credit Union after completing her goal of earning a Master’s degree in accounting, “ said Matt Kershaw, CCCU’s Chief Executive Officer. “While she was away, Tina picked up additional industry experience and several new skills such as portfolio analysis that will be beneficial to our members.”

Rice was previously with CCCU for 14 years. Since then she has not only added a degree to her resume but she has gained experience in the gaming, hospitality and technology industries.

Outside of her busy schedule balancing family, work and school, Rice is fortunate to hold the title of Chief Financial Officer with a thriving professional theater company in Las Vegas. She recently participated in plays such as When the Rain Stops Falling, and The Weir, and will be
