

‘Too Many Questions: An Evening with Virginia Durr’

Raised to be a genteel Southern lady, Virginia Foster Durr defied her family, friends and culture to become one of the South’s most active and vocal champions of civil rights. Her remarkable life journey and wry sense of humor come to life in this monodrama commissioned by Vulcan Park and Museum in Birmingham, Alabama, and performed by Bloomfield actress Ginny Loggins on Saturday, March 4 at 2 p.m. at the library.

‘Celtic, Gaelic, or Anglo-Irish: Which is the Real Ireland?’

Learn about pre-Celtic Irish history and the invasions that brought Christianity, cities, castles, Gaelic and English culture. Bloomfield resident Brian Ó Broin, Ph.D., medieval literature professor at William Paterson University, and prizewinning Gaelic novelist, will discuss the resilient country, its challenges and opportunities in the 21st century. It’s happening Wednesday, March 8 at 6 p.m. in the library.
