

Back to School STEM Organization

Once again summer has come to an end, even faster than last year. Now it's time to get back to school and get organized again for the new routine. Easier said than done! One thing to not lose sight of is STEM! Exposing children to STEM gives them the opportunity to explore STEM related topics. Having a designated area for all the supplies will make it easier to stay organized. There are many options, depending on your space and the amount of supplies you keep on hand. The dollar store is a great place to find containers or even carts. Think about the endless possibilities for STEM experiments and crafts if you have a designated creation area!

Any questions, contact Annette King at twinkings2@gmail.com!