Martin Makary, MD, MPH, FACS

Surgical Oncologist and Chief, Johns Hopkins Islet Transplant Surgery

The White House has declared the opioid crisis a national emergency. One in 16 patients become chronic users, according to new research by doctors at the University of Michigan. Even more alarming, research shows that relapse rates after opioid addiction treatment could be as high as 91%. In addition to expanding treatment, it's time we address the root of the problem — overprescribing. Learn how John Hopkins Surgical Team is addressing this issue, one surgical procedure at a time, with a combination of metrics, data sharing reports assessing practice patterns and best practices among providers.

11:20 am – 11:50 am Insights into Successful Community Approaches to Tackling Opioid Use Disorders
