

Moving Picture Rental Provides Production Services For Chief Productions' Lotto Evolved Commercial

Chief Productions of Manchester, England traveled to Miami in 2016 with their directors Nate Camponi and Ben Tonge and producer Colin Offland to shoot a humorous spot for UK Lottery Lottoland "Lotto Evolved" and hired Miami's one-stop-shop Moving Picture Rental as local fixers to organize.

The Chief Productions' Lottoland job was unique -- they filmed a chimpanzee (of Wolf of Wall Street fame) evolving from a chimp into a Neanderthal through to modern man, mimicking Lottoland's lottery evolution. To achieve the look they rented an Alexa Mini, Cooke S4/i lenses and lighting from Moving Picture Rental.

Chief Productions also needed a crew; studio space for extensive walking scenes; plus a primate veterinarian to oversee any scenes shot with the Chimp. MPR arranged all of these components to client's specs, renting studio space at Great Southern Studios and hiring local gaffers, grips and a first AD plus a qualified vet. The shoot finished on time and produced fantastic results.

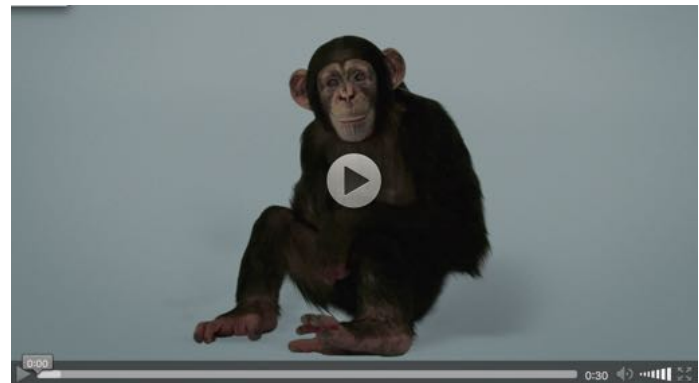

Moving Picture Rental provides a range of production services for out-of-town agencies and production companies beyond its camera, gear and grip truck rental services including finding and hiring experienced crews, obtaining permits, securing locations, renting studios and casting talent.
