Praying with the Masters Today

Bernard McGinn, PhD

Contemplative prayer has been a part of Christianity since its beginning. Contemplation (theôria/contemplatio) may be thought of as an integral aspect of human nature, expressed in different ways across many cultures and religious traditions. In this seminar I would like to give a brief introduction to the nature of mysticism through an exploration of the development of contemplative prayer in the Christian tradition. I will sketch the understanding of contemplation in some of the premier mystics in the history of Christianity. Examples from the early Church will include John Cassian and Gregory the Great. Medieval teachers represented will be Bernard of Clairvaux, Meister Eckhart, and the anonymous author of The Cloud of Unknowing, while early modern mystics like Teresa of Avila and John of the Cross, will also feature in the presentations.

These great mystics are not just historical monuments, but active resources for those drawn to the contemplative life. Contemplative prayer is a conversation with God (as Teresa says), but for us today, I will argue, it is also a dialogue with the contemplative tradition, as modern mystical teachers like Edith Stein, Thomas Merton, and John Main have shown. I will include insights from these and some other modern figures in my comments, which I intend not so much as purely academic presentations, but as reflections to stimulate how we might plumb the meaning of contemplative prayer today.

Bernard McGinn is widely regarded as the preeminent scholar of mysticism in the Western Christian tradition. An internationally respected theologian, historian, and scholar of spirituality, the history of Christianity, and the history of Christian thought, he has written extensively about spirituality and mysticism. Prof. McGinn is the Naomi Shenstone Donnelley Professor Emeritus of Historical Theology and of the History of Christianity in the Divinity School of the University of Chicago. He has written 18 books, 12 edited and over 300 articles in scholarly journals, has edited and co-edited 10 books, and has lectured at over one hundred colleges and universities in North America, Europe, and Israel.

The Inner Room

Pre-seminar Silent Retreat with Laurence Freeman, OSB

August 7–10, 2017

*How we can understand and follow the teaching of Jesus
on the inner journey?*

Jesus calls us to a complete change of mind – a progressive transformation of our inner nature that is essential to our experience of life as a meaningful journey. Through the talks, reflection, and, above all, the silence and stillness of the retreat, Laurence Freeman, OSB will inspire us and reinforce the power of meditation as part of our lives. Fr. Laurence is the spiritual guide and director of The World Community for Christian Meditation, an international and ecumenical network of meditators, groups and centers.

Register early as residential spaces are limited.
Discounted early registration through June 19.
Registration closes July 17.
