

Alternative Visions: Undiscovered Art from the South West

Deadline for submissions is

Friday 4 November 2016

Outside In, Arts & Health South West (AHSW) and Bristol Museum & Art Gallery are working in partnership on a new touring exhibition, 'Alternative Visions: Undiscovered Art from the South West.' Submissions are open for artists, who align themselves with Outside In's ethos, to enter work for possible inclusion in the show.

The project is happening thanks to a successful Arts Council England Strategic Touring Programme bid, which will enable the organisation and production of a touring exhibition of work by artists who feel excluded from the mainstream art world due to health, disability, social circumstance or isolation.

The exhibition will tour to four partner museums in the South West: Bristol Museum & Art Gallery, Falmouth Art Gallery, Poole Museum, and The Wilson in Cheltenham.

Artists who live in the South West will need to register on the Outside In website to create an online gallery. Artists are then able to submit two pieces of work for possible inclusion in the show. Anyone requiring assistance with setting up an online gallery can contact Outside In directly to receive support.

The touring exhibition will be accompanied by interpretation and educational activities, including a film, audio tour and additional interpretation from participants of Artists First; a group of learning disabled visual artists based in Bristol.

Bristol Museum & Art Gallery say: "We are really excited to be part of Alternative Visions as we want to challenge visitors' understanding of what art is and who artists are. Through our involvement in the project we'll be encouraging people to visit Bristol Museum & Art Gallery who have not been before, so we can show that the museum is for everyone."

Poole Museum and Arts Service has been investing in arts and health initiatives for a number of years and this exhibition is an exciting addition to their programme. Anna Shiels of Poole Arts Service said: "This project will help us to reach new artists in our community who are making art outside the mainstream – in art clubs, social care settings, hospitals and in their own homes."

The Wilson say: "We're looking forward to welcoming audiences to consider work which confronts perceptions of those who see themselves as facing barriers. We hope that this exhibition sparks new opportunities for participation for visitors of all backgrounds, cultures and abilities."

Finally, Falmouth Art Gallery is excited by the prospect of shining a light on the excellent work being created outside the mainstream.
