Treating Tobacco Dependence in Behavioral Health Settings

Smoking rates in individuals with mental illness or addiction are at least double that of the general population. A growing body of research reveals that smokers with mental illness want to quit tobacco, are able to quit, and quitting does not threaten their recovery process. This activity will teach effective interventions to combat tobacco use, will help learners understand tobacco dependence as an addiction and chronic disease, and introduce motivational interviewing as a means of promoting behavior change and treatment compliance in tobacco-dependent patients.

Learning Objectives

1. Describe the prevalence and consequences of tobacco use and behavioral health conditions (mental illness and addiction).
2. Explain the neurobiology of smoking and behavioral health conditions.
3. Recognize the basic “spirit” of motivational interviewing, treatment engagement strategies (open-ended questions, affirmation, reflective listening) and describe “change talk”.
4. Describe valuable tools for assessing tobacco dependence including DSM criteria, Fagerstrom scores and measurement of expired carbon monoxide.
5. Review the risks, role and benefits of medications for treating tobacco dependence including indications and contraindications, special precautions and warnings.
6. Identify brief interventions, group and individual counseling and social supports to treat tobacco dependence and prevent relapse after a quit attempt.
7. Describe the advantages of using a peer-to-peer approach to addressing tobacco for individuals with behavioral health conditions.
8. Determine ways policy can reduce tobacco use and support treatment and review practical strategies to overcome common challenges in becoming a tobacco-free facility.
9. Assess the influence that tobacco marketing communications have on smoking behaviors and dispel myths and misconceptions about tobacco products.
10. Develop treatment plans for treating tobacco dependence in diverse populations with behavioral health conditions.

Target audience is physicians, nurses, substance abuse counselors, mental health counselors, psychologists, social workers, certified tobacco treatment specialists and other healthcare professionals.
