CONTINUING EDUCATION FIRST SEMINAR

"MASONRY FREEZE THAW ANALYSIS"

Presented by: Neil W. Garry PE, RRC, REWC, BECxP
BELL & SPINA, ARCHITECTS-PLANNERS, PC

This session will familiarize participants with simulation methodologies for assessing the risk of masonry freeze thaw degradation, with particular focus on interior insulation retrofit projects. Foundational concepts of dew point analysis and hygrothermal simulation will be presented, along with a discussion of the capabilities and limitations of both THERM and WUFI software simulations.

Neil W. Garry is a partner at the Rochester, New York office of Bell & Spina, Architects-Planners. Much of his 19 year professional career has focused on the technical aspects of building envelope systems. He is a licensed Structural Engineer (PE), Building Enclosure Commissioning Process Provider (BCxP), RCI Registered Roof Consultant (RRC) and RCI Registered Exterior Wall Consultant (REWC). Neil is a member of ASTM International Technical Committee DO8, Roofing and Waterproofing, and Committee E06, Performance of Buildings.

"HISTORIC PRESERVATION PRIMER"

Presented by: Virginia G. Searl, Architect
BERO ARCHITECTURE PLLC

In an environment where sustainability is of increasing importance learn how historic preservation fits into your sustainability portfolio. Find out who must comply with preservation standards, what those standards are, why compliance is important, where to find help, and how to incorporate preservation standards in your work on historic buildings.

Virginia is Senior Partner at Bero Architecture PLLC, a full service general practice architectural firm with specialized expertise in the preservation, rehabilitation, restoration, and adaptive re-use of historic buildings. Virginia has 29 years' experience in historic preservation having served on the Village of Pittsford's Architectural and Preservation Review Board in addition to professional architectural experience. With a degree in Civil Engineering Technology from RIT and a New York State license in architecture, technical issues related to materials and methods are her particular interest and area of expertise.
