

Preserving the Past Growing our Future

2017 Report to the Community

"It was very emotional returning to my family's farm after 47 years. I loved rediscovering that the farm still exists, and reminiscing with friends and neighbors who remember my family."

- Jim Massaro, grandson of John and Mary Massaro, pictured with his partner, Tricia Bocchino

Farm Manager Steve Munno and his wife, Jacquie, welcomed Vivian Alice Munno on June 30, 2017.

Growth of our education and outreach programs prompted us to hire Rebecca Toms as part-time operations assistant this year. Becca, pictured above with MCF vice president Jon Gorham, previously worked at Natick Community Organic Farm in Natick, Massachusetts. Our new education director, Corey Thomas (above right), whose expertise is in animal science, came to us after earning his M.A. in agricultural education at University of Connecticut.

"Last night we tried the broccoli from the CSA and we wanted to let you know that it is the best broccoli that we've ever had. This includes broccoli from other farms and family gardens. It is tender and sweet. Perfect."

-Michelle, CSA subscriber

🌿 We continue to reclaim fallow, overgrown land and currently have 10 acres under cultivation. The additional acreage provided a bountiful fall harvest of broccoli, cauliflower, kohlrabi, turnips, kale, radishes and salad mix.

🌿 Farmer Steve grew more than 200 varieties of vegetables, carefully choosing crops to provide our customers with a diverse offering weekly and throughout the season.

🌿 This year we gave more than 10,000 pounds of fresh organic produce to local hunger relief agencies—like Woodbridge Human Services, Salvation Army, Spooner House and FISH New Haven—and more than 53,000 pounds since 2010.

Keep Farming. Feed People. Build Community.

Farm staffers helped organize a healthy food cooking competition where Valley middle school students competed for the most healthy comfort food. The winning dish was baked chicken with sweet mixed vegetable salsa.

FoodCorps service member Natalie Glidden connects students with concepts of health and growing food at Irving School in Derby, where Valley United Way volunteers built a new garden.

🌿 We regularly attended 4 farmer's markets in 2017, where we accept EBT cards, and reach a broader audience in Milford, New Haven and Woodbridge.

🌿 At Massaro, we share our knowledge of growing one's own food as well as how to use it. In 2017, ~ 600 people attended farm workshops on topics including fermentation, growing cover crops, beekeeping, and medicinal herbs.

🌿 The farm supports 8 community gardens, including 3 new ones in Ansonia and Derby neighborhoods with limited access to healthy food. 200 individuals participated and more than 800 pounds of produce was harvested.

"My family and I love volunteering for the farm's annual harvest festival."

- Bridget Calderon, Ansonia resident

"Corey and his assistant were fantastic interacting with my children in the Learning Garden. Their efforts to include my autistic son with the chickens paid off. You are all feeding our bellies. But the nourishment you've provided goes a little bit deeper."

- CSA Customer, Alyssa

Our annual farm-to-table dinner, Dinner on the Farm, catered by Chef Denise Appel of Zinc Modern American Kitchen in New Haven, continues to be our signature event, selling out each year.

Over the last year, farm staffers instructed an average of 150 students each week—from Ansonia, Bethany, Derby, Middletown, New Haven, Shelton and Woodbridge—teaching them about sowing, harvesting, composting and pollinators.

In addition to our board and committee members, more than 100 volunteers put in 600 volunteer hours, planting, weeding, distributing produce, maintaining garden areas and providing marketing and office support.

More than 3,400 visitors passed through the farm this year for tours, workshops and events, like Celebrate Spring, Family Fun Day and Dinner on the Farm.
