About the Workshop

This seminar will support participants in understanding how to build, feed, protect, and extend the child-teacher relationship. What type of leadership helps kids to feel safe? How can we as educators build relationships in which children want to follow us? How can we become their compass point? And how does this help kids to discover their best selves?

National Child Day

Celebrated on November 20th each year, National Child Day has been celebrated across Canada since 1993 to commemorate the United Nations' adoption of two documents on children's rights: the United Nations Declaration of the Rights of the Child on November 20, 1959, and the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child on November 20, 1989.
