Research with Electronic Health Records: Promise, Opportunities, and Pitfalls

Emily Pfaff, PhD

Co-Director, NC TraCS Informatics & Data Science
Associate Director, Program on Health & Clinical Informatics
UNC Chapel Hill School of Medicine

Thursday, November 20, 2025

12:00PM- 1:00PM

Virtual via Zoom

Educational Objectives:

At the conclusion of this activity, the participant should be better able to:

1. Utilize electronic health record (EHR) data for research—and when not to use it.
2. State the pros and cons of using centralized data repositories versus local data to power your research.
3. Achieve methodological rigor in EHR- and real-world-data driven research using a team science approach.
