DEL REY UPDATE

The Del Rey community is settling into a steady January. Following the very busy fall schedule, January is a time where students can settle down and dig in to their learning. At any given time you might see students with their noses in books, or writing an essay, or playing math games to build strategies and skills. On the playground basketball intramurals are in full swing and students are having a blast. Fourth and fifth grade students are studying to represent their classes in the annual Spelling Bee. To top it all off, the upper grades are competing in the “reading superbowl” and logging hours and hours of time as they make their way through the goalpost.

Del Rey is excited to see improvements in common learning spaces, like the hallways. The community came together and raised money to support improvements like painting and creating flexible environments for students to work and learn. It feels clean and bright. Del Rey is in the process of ordering the furniture and creating interactive spaces to stimulate the senses.

Del Rey is in the process of switching from a parent volunteer run lunch program to Sodexo, where quality food can be provided, while lightening the load on volunteers.

The Del Rey garden is looking spectacular, with regular harvests happening for every classroom! Stop by to see it if you get a chance.
