The Future of ART: Two-Drug Oral and Injectable Therapy

Presented by:

Brian Wood, MD
Professor, Department of Medicine,
Division of Allergy & Infectious Diseases
Medical Director, MWAETC HIV ECHO Program
Associate Editor for the National HIV Curriculum and National HIV PrEP Curriculum
University of Washington

Objectives:

- Discuss the future of antiretroviral therapy, which prioritizes two-drug options (and gather opinions on benefits vs. drawbacks of two-drug HIV treatment).
- Explain the newest data and developments in long-acting antiretroviral therapy and evolutions in our understanding of who may benefit from this therapy.
- Describe novel antiretroviral medications that are in development and likely coming in the near future.
