

Mary Livingston

For the past 4 years, Mary E. Livingston has served as President/Chapter Chair of SCORE Philadelphia, Counselors to America's Small Business. She was initially introduced to SCORE in 2004 while living in Atlanta. Upon moving back to her beloved City of Brotherly Love and Sisterly Affection in 2007, she reached out to the Philadelphia chapter and has served with each Chapter Chair since. She previously served as Vice President of Education and Client Services.

Mary has worked in human resources for over 30 years. She is president and founder of M. Livingston Group, a human resources consultancy & training company founded in 2000. She provides human resources services primarily to small companies and is a national trainer facilitating a wide range of topics to enhance bottom-line results for today's workplace. She was formerly the Human Resources Director for the New York Times Regional Newspaper Group and the Program Director for the Maynard Institute's management program, which was held annually at the Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management.

Mary currently serves on the Boards of The Philadelphia Tribune and WORC Loan Advisory Council; supports her community by serving on several committees for the Walnut Hill Community Association; is a member of the Philadelphia Chapter of Chums, Inc.
