Second Annual IECRM Sporting Clay Shoot on June 29 – Great Fun and Spirited Competition

Situated along a cottonwood creek bottom, overlooking Colorado's snow covered peaks to the West, Independent Electrical Contractors (IECRM) members enjoyed an experience they'll not soon forget at Colorado Clays Shooting Park on Friday, June 29. The event was the second annual competition and fundraiser for IECRM.

With its roots coming from England, sporting clays is a shotgun shooting game in which clay pigeons are presented to the shooter in different ways the Colorado Clays' shooting grounds are laid out in stations with each station representing one type of bird or a combination of game; a rabbit and a grouse, for example.

Nearly 100 IECRM members and their guests participated in the Second Annual Energy Industry Sporting Clay Shoot event. The friendly competition was open to the Energy, Electrical, and Construction Industries: contractors, general contractors, and the industry associates that support their work.

The morning began with a warm welcome from IECRM and Rexel staff as players checked-in. Each player received PPE equipment donated by Colorado Safety Supply and breakfast burritos, coffee, and juice, provided by EATON, to ensure that all participants were well equipped to take on the 15 station course. QED, the premier sponsor of the event, provided shells to each player and Smith Power Products kicked off the event with a safety speech reminding the players of the importance of safety on the job and during daily activities.

David Jones with QED and Marilyn Stansbury, IECRM CEO welcomed guests to their starting stations and at 9:30am the Shotgun Start commenced with a bang! Throughout the morning, Blueprint Skilled Services, QED, Power Management, and Rexel shuttled guests to their stations and distributed water and snacks as needed.

As players completed the course, they enjoyed a BBQ lunch sponsored by Milwaukee Electric Tool, along with beverages and free gifts handed out by The Premier Group. QED and Atkore International had booths to display innovative products relevant to the industry. While the scores were being tallied, Jay Commuso with I-PRO recognized our U.S. veterans and first responders and thanked them for their service. The winners were announced in an awards presentation sponsored by Leviton Manufacturing.
