Movement of Budget Bills Continues

Budget bills were the main focus of legislative activity this week, with the House passing all its budget bills out of the chamber. The Senate's School Aid budget bill (Senate Bill 751) awaits a vote on the floor, which is anticipated to take place next week.

Also next week is the Consensus Revenue Estimating Conference (May 17), after which the Legislature will set new targets for their budgets based on a forecast of state revenues agreed upon at the conference. Negotiations on House and Senate points of difference between their budgets will then begin.

It appears the Legislature is on track to finalize the fiscal year 2025 state budget by the July 1 deadline. The budget will then be sent to Governor Whitmer for approval.
