Emotional intelligence is an important inter- and intra-personal domain that helps everyone in higher education develop 13 critical empathy, self-awareness, and social skills. The dynamic, 45-year research-derived, energizing Transformative Emotional Intelligence Model that we'll be discussing enables faculty to create more engaging learning environments where understanding and emotional support are cornerstones for student achievement and success. Emotional intelligence skills and learning strategies improves academic performance and career development, lessens classroom distractions, and creates a more positive and inclusive learning environment.

If you teach graduate students, you may be pleased to know that over 80 doctoral dissertations and masters' theses have been completed using the transformative model of emotional intelligence. If you are a leader in higher education, you may be interested in learning how Transformative Emotional Intelligence was applied in institutional effectiveness plans and in recent re-accreditation efforts.

At our 22nd Annual Emotional Intelligence Conference, you will have the opportunity to hear from experts in the field of emotional intelligence and learn practical tools and strategies to support your students' emotional development. You'll also have the chance to network with instructors, administrators and others who are also striving to enhance emotional intelligence in the classroom. Please join us!
