Paula Skutnick, M. Ed. is a licensed psychologist and an adjunct professor of psychology for over 20 years at West Chester University of Pennsylvania. An award-winning ragtime pianist, Paula has composed several musical theatre works, recently composing the music and co-authoring the book for the musical LET GO!, produced and performed in Philadelphia. She also plays keyboard and sings in several ragtime/blues/early jazz ensembles. She has played or sat-in with many bands, including The Blackbird Society Orchestra (authentic 1920's/30's) and the late great guitar legend Danny Starobin.

Paula has published articles on the intersection of psychology and music, specifically regarding "flow" and performance anxiety. In addition to her "day jobs" as a college professor and piano teacher, Paula likes to write and play any kind of music that moves or grooves.
