

Full and Fair State Funding for Our Schools

Public support for full and fair state funding for our public schools is growing. Because of insufficient funding from the state, all of our districts are shortchanged. Students of color are especially effected.

Without adequate funding from the state, districts are overly reliant on property taxes. Schools with less community wealth are seriously disadvantaged.

A school funding court case will begin in Harrisburg on November 12, and it could change our schools for the better.

While the details of this issue are many, the simple message is that our state lawmakers need to provide adequate funding and remove the disadvantage for so many students of color. This court case can make this happen.

There will be gatherings and vigils throughout the state to show support for fair and full funding of our schools, including one right here in Bucks County
