"Page Dickey's quiet and contemplative journey should be required reading for anyone seeking the courage to begin again, or the inspiration to live within the spirit possessed by the land."
—DANIEL J. HINKLEY, AUTHOR OF WINDCLIFF

In an illustrated talk, Page describes leaving her beloved garden, Duck Hill, after 34 years, finding a new home in northwest Connecticut at the foot of the Berkshire Hills, and falling in love with its land. A garden emerges with echoes of Duck Hill, but deeply entwined with the surrounding fields and woods. We will learn how her approach to gardening has changed with this new adventure.
