City of Peachtree Corners Swears In New Marshals

During their November 14 City Council Meeting, Peachtree Corners Mayor Mike Mason swore in the City's new City Marshals.

The incoming officials are Chief Marshal Edward Restrepo, Deputy Chief Marshal Johnnie L. Bing, Jr., and Captain Henry A. Mesa.

The City Marshal Program is a non-emergency initiative to bridge the city and the Gwinnett County Police Department (GCPD), which will continue its primary policing duties. The City Marshals Department will handle specific city needs. This includes addressing crime hotspots, increasing patrol presence, and community interaction. They will also test and deploy new law enforcement technologies, in collaboration with Curiosity Lab at Peachtree Corners.

The Peachtree Corners City Marshals are POST Certified and can perform all duties of any officer in Georgia. They are trained to handle criminal activities and will coordinate with Gwinnett County Police when needed. Residents and local businesses can directly contact the Marshal's Office for extra patrols, crime prevention education, and community program participation.
