

THE UNO STEM TRAIL CENTER AND SERVICE-LEARNING ACADEMY

INVITE YOU TO THE WRITING WORKSHOPS SERIES

Three Half-Day Writing Workshops on Developing Manuscripts Focused on Showcasing Data from Service-Learning Teaching or Research to Wider Audiences

Workshop overview

Bringing years of service-learning experience, the UNO STEM Trail Center and Service-Learning Academy will conduct a series of writing workshops on developing manuscripts and presentations from faculty service-learning activities (teaching or research). These workshops will equip participants with knowledge of showcasing service-learning activities to wider audiences (both local and international). It will also teach participants how to execute and sustain service-learning projects. Participants will also receive incentives such as professional development dollars, opportunities to publish in special issues of open access journals, publication costs will be covered by UNO.

When and where: December 2021 – February 2022, University of Nebraska Omaha (Specific dates will be chosen depending on the availability of the participants).

Who should attend: UNO Faculty whose teaching and research activity involves service-learning.

Workshop Learning Outcomes:

- Equip participants with the requisite knowledge of translating information from their service-learning activity to wider audiences.
- Participants understand the benefits of service learning and its connections to professional development.
- Participants build collaborative relationships.
