

Dr. Tammy Mahon, Vice President

Dr. Tammy Mahon, Director of the Special Education Program, Taylor University, has 11 years of experience in higher education. She has taught both graduate and undergraduate levels as well as served as an administrator. Dr. Mahon is a Council for Exceptional Children program reviewer for university and college level programs who are seeking accreditation and recognition under the Council for the Accreditation for Educator Preparation (CAEP). As a reviewer, she has the opportunity to assist other universities in creating high quality teacher education programs across the country.

She has an extensive background of 26 years of teaching preschool through high school grade levels as both a classroom and special education teacher. Dr. Mahon has been a frequent conference presenter and has published works. As an active member of the Indiana Learning Disabilities Association and Board Vice President, National Learning Disabilities Association, Council for Exceptional Children, Indiana Council of Administrators of Special Education, Indiana East Roundtable for Special Education Administrators, she seeks to collaborate for improved outcomes for all individuals with exceptionalities.