Florida Atlantic University Launches FAU Medicine Primary Care

Florida Atlantic University proudly announces the launch of FAU Medicine Primary Care, where University physicians deliver personalized Primary Care. Located just minutes from campus, FAU Medicine is a university-operated facility where FAU College of Medicine's experienced physicians combine the latest innovations in adult primary care medicine with a personalized, patient centered approach.

FAU Medicine provides care for the most commonly needed health services in a state-of-the-art medical facility:

- Preventive care and wellness
- Routine check ups
- Management of acute and chronic health problems
- Nutrition counseling
- Medical and laboratory tests
- Geriatric care

As an academic center, FAU Medicine offers opportunities to participate in clinical trials and to engage in the latest research studies.

Dr. Leonard Berkowitz, D.O., joins FAU Medicine as lead physician of the primary care practice. Board-certified in family practice by the American Board of Family Medicine, Dr. Berkowitz served as a primary care physician at Heart and Vascular Associates and Primecare Medical Associates in New Jersey and at Medical Associates of New York. He is devoted to providing you with compassionate and personalized primary care.

"Having spent many years in leadership roles and as a primary care physician in busy multi-specialty practices in NY and NJ, the transition to this new state-of-the-art facility in Boca Raton enables me to continue to provide expert medical care in a thriving community with world-class academic medical resources," said Berkowitz.

FAU Medicine doctors care for a patient's whole health using the latest advances in research technology. Fostering a community engaged in health and wellness, it is a firm belief that the quality of medical care improves when patients spend quality time with their doctors and focus on prevention.

The expert team of FAU College of Medicine's faculty physicians will be available for consultation at this facility.

FAU Medicine's cutting edge medical center in the Galen Medical Building, at 880 N.W. 13th Street in Boca Raton, is equipped with all the resources needed for patient care and well-being, from initial consultations and treatment services to preventive care.

FAU Medicine opens February 15, and offers a convenient schedule with evening and Saturday morning hours. The answering service is available before and after regular business hours, and one of the physicians is always on call. FAU Medicine accepts insurance from major insurance plans as well as traditional Medicare Part B.
