WHO WAS SAM ROBB?

Sam was a typical teenage boy who loved sports and, at 6'5" and 230 lbs., was a commanding presence on and off the field. He was just starting a promising football career, when a stress fracture revealed osteosarcoma in his growth plate. The protocol for the fight was three months of chemotherapy pre-surgery, limb salvage surgery (knee replacement) and more chemotherapy to eradicate the cancer.

FIGHTING TILL THE LAST BREATH

Unfortunately, Sam's response to chemo was poor, with a 50% necrosis (tumor kill) putting him into a high-risk group. His odds for survival dropped from 75% survival after five years, to considerably less.

Most normal people would be despondent or bitter, but not Sam. When it was clear his football career was over, Sam turned his focus to baseball and worked hard to develop the skills of a competitive baseball pitcher. Sam knew the chances were high the cancer could come back, but Sam's motto became "Fightin Till the Last Breath."

Sadly, Sam lost his fight June 25, 2007 when the cancer came back with a vengeance and metastasized in his lungs.

WHY WE ARE FIGHTING ...

Sam never wanted sympathy, nor did he ever act like a sick person. He was good at everything except one thing – being sick.

The Sam Robb Memorial 5K was started by Andy George, a 2010 Centennial HS Graduate who had met Sam in middle school. Sam was a 2005 Centennial HS Graduate. Andy is the son of Sam's doctor, Dr. Bradley George, Oncologist at Children's Health Care of Atlanta Scottish Rite. When Sam relapsed in 2007, Andy (a member of the Centennial HS Cross Country Team) wanted to do something in Sam's memory to benefit CURE Childhood Cancer. The Centennial Cross Country Team continued their support with an annual run to benefit CURE Childhood Cancer contributing over $75,000 to Sam's Fund. The Color for CURE for the Sam Robb Fund continues this tradition.

Not only do we need research to help find a cure for childhood cancers, we need dedicated, trained doctors on our side to fight. We believe it is critically important to help train the pediatric oncologists of tomorrow, so that they are fully prepared for a lifetime of excellence in patient care, teaching and research – just like the doctors who cared for Sam.
