

BreastfeedLA Lactation Education Specialist Training Program Description

BreastfeedLA's Lactation Consultant Education Course is an advanced and comprehensive educational course that provides part 2 of the 90 hours as mandated by the IBLCE for certification as a Lactation Consultant. This information will allow graduates to have the background necessary to prepare students to pass the educational components of the IBCLC exam for certification as an IBCLC.

Lactation Consultants work in many settings in our community, including physicians' offices, hospitals, lactation centers, and in private practice. The scope of practice for an IBCLC can be found here: <https://iblce.org/wp-content/uploads/2018/12/scope-of-practice-2018.pdf>.

To sit for the IBCLC certification examination, an individual must meet eligibility criteria in three areas: Health Sciences Education, Lactation Specific Education, and Lactation Specific Clinical Experience. This course satisfies one of the three requirements: Lactation Specific Education.

Prerequisites include successful completion of a 45 hour lactation education training (i.e. CLE/C/S) and a passion for elevating breastfeeding as a public health strategy to improve disparities in health outcomes.

BreastfeedLA's Lactation Consultant Specialist Training was created to provide opportunities for the lactation-specific education required for all individuals aspiring to pursue designation as IBCLCs and to supplement the training and education of existing healthcare professionals in the area of human lactation. All concepts, skills, and education in human lactation are taught in accordance with the IBLCE Detailed Content Outline (www.iblce.org) and meet the standards for supporting breastfeeding practices advised by the World Health Organization, American Academy of Pediatrics, and Baby-Friendly USA.

Faculty

Réka Morvay is a Hungarian-American bilingual International Board Certified Lactation Consultant (IBCLC), counselor, doula, and childbirth educator. Réka received her degrees in Psychology from UC Berkeley and Cornell University in the United States. She trained as a childbirth educator through Childbirth International and was trained as a birth and postpartum doula through the Hungarian Doula Association, DONA and Békés Dúlakör. Through BreastfeedLA, Réka provides clinical skills training and education for hospital staff working to improve breastfeeding outcomes.
