WEEK ONE: CRITICAL RACE THEORY

This week, we explore Critical Race Theory: what it is, the misconceptions surrounding it, and action steps to ensure children learn a truthful accounting of our country's history of systemic racism and how that legacy continues to impact our lives today.

Registration for the Stand Against Racism Challenge is still open. Sign up today to join this week's study and discussions around Critical Race Theory.

WEEK TWO: REPRODUCTIVE JUSTICE

Abortion bans push young people out of the workplace and limit their education and careers, with lifelong consequences for themselves and their families. This week, we explore the importance of supporting the reproductive freedom of all.

Registration for the Stand Against Racism Challenge is still open. Sign up today to join this week's study and discussions around reproductive justice.

WEEK THREE:
LIVING WAGE

This week, we learn about how raising the minimum wage to a living wage could be a powerful tool for closing the racial and gender wealth gaps, the history of the sub-minimum wage, and why paying a living wage is key to an equitable workplace.

Registration for the Stand Against Racism Challenge is still open. Sign up today to join this week's study and discussions around a living wage.
