Meet Mary Hunt - A Credit Human-ist

By Mary Hunt and Belinda Sanchez, SDA

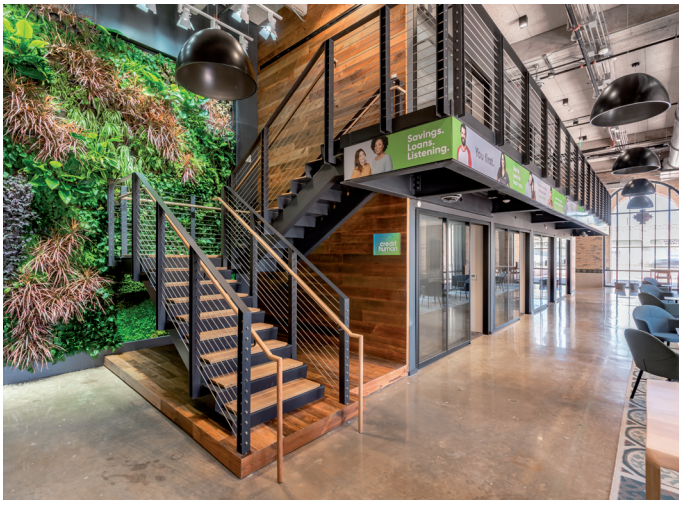

Mary Hunt , SKG

Meet Mary Hunt, leader of the business development efforts for SKG in San Antonio. She is passionate about transforming space & connecting people to their work. The SKG mission is to take the client's vision and harness SKG's vast resources to make that vision a reality.

The Credit Human project was a revolutionary experience that resulted in a beacon of ingenuity. Their vision, core values & culture carry through the interior space to empower and inspire all employees to live better, healthier lives and thrive in their workplace.

It took a small village; giving a nod to Kirksey Architects, Joeris, Project Control, Big State Electric & One80 Solar who contributed in the most innovative ways collectively to bring forth the client's dream space.

With the help of Mary and the team of SKG / Knoll Interior Designers, Credit Human went to revolutionary lengths to design an ergonomically driven, people-centric space, sustainable to the core and electric with innovation. This 200,000 square foot building at 1703 Broadway,

San Antonio, TX, has eight floors furnished and 600 employees and is a sustainability masterpiece. The building:

- Will use 96% less energy from CPS Energy, the municipal utility company.
- Will use 97% less potable water from the municipal water company, San Antonio Water System, by 1,619 metric tons (equal to taking about 344 passenger vehicles off the road per year, every year.)
- Onsite through low-impact development.

The objective for CH was to create a space where everything Thrives. The challenge was to bring people,

The environment, and business together to create an ideal experience. Credit Human wanted people-centric solutions in their new space, so they enlisted their employees for feedback. As a bidding company, SKG was required to provide mockup workstations for a multi-week employee trial run, empowering their end-users as the decisionmakers. The result was the incorporation of a variety of settings, styles and postures to allow choice and control over where and how the employees work.

- Seamlessly integrate the entire spectrum of the workforce and promote collaboration across teams.
