JOIN THE STATEWIDE CONVERSATION ON EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION!

Each fall, CHILDREN AT RISK brings early childhood leaders and stakeholders together for community-centered conversations in 12 major Texas cities to exchange insights, examine regional experiences, and envision a stronger future for child care across Texas.

This year, C@R experts will dive into statewide policy developments, including the Texas Sunset Advisory Commission review process, the Governor's Task Force on Early Childhood Education and Care, and community-informed priorities for the 90th Texas Legislature beginning in January 2027. Participants will also explore the latest research on Child Care Deserts, including C@R's newest "chronic desert" measure, as well as local investments in child care quality.

For years, these conversations have helped shape C@R's research and advocacy priorities. Join us for a locally grounded discussion in your community about the challenges facing children, families, and the child care workforce, and how we can leverage opportunities to strengthen early childhood education across Texas.
