

Rachael Gruenwald, DVM, is a second year anatomic pathology resident at Michigan State University. She graduated from University of Missouri, College of Veterinary Medicine in 2020 and shortly thereafter started her residency at Michigan State University VDL. The residency has been exciting and has a diverse case load allowing her to pursue several interests within pathology and grow as a diagnostician. She enjoys teaching veterinary students and currently plans on pursuing a career at an academic diagnostic laboratory. Her professional interests include large animal pathology, pulmonary pathology, and ocular pathology.
