Class of 2025

Kyrstin is a first year DVM student at The Ohio State University, as she finishes her Veterinary Public Health-Masters of Public Health, epidemiology track, degree this semester. Over the past year, she partnered with the Ohio ADDL to create an impact evaluation study to help the laboratory prepare for the expected growth in Ohio's animal agriculture industry for the next 20 years. Her hobbies include rock climbing, volleyball, art, and raising service animals like the one seen in my profile picture.
