

2022-2023 Inclusive Excellence Postdoctoral & Visiting Scholars Program

The University of New Mexico's Inclusive Excellence Postdoctoral and Visiting Scholars Program (IEPVSP) is available to support up to three postdoctoral fellow, research associate, or visiting scholar positions that would enhance racial/ethnic diversity on main campus. Candidates must be nominated by UNM main campus tenure-granting academic units that wish to hire them for 12-month appointments. Candidates may not apply directly.

The goal is to identify individuals from underrepresented racial/ethnic minority (URM) groups (i.e., African American/Black, American Indian/Indigenous, and Latinx), or women traditionally underrepresented in STEM (mathematical and physical sciences or engineering), who are potential candidates for main campus tenure-track faculty appointments that would contribute to diversity and strategic hiring goals.

Departments are expected to mentor and support high-potential candidates to prepare them for tenure track assistant professor appointments at UNM. In addition, departments on main campus will be encouraged to apply for DEI bridge funding for hiring URM tenure-system faculty after candidates' successful completion of the Inclusive Excellence postdoc/visiting scholars program.

Stipend

- The stipend for the 2022-23 Academic Year is $50,000 (for a 12-month appointment). Academic units will cover fringe benefits and can provide supplemental funds.
- An additional $2,000 is provided for research, travel, and related expenses, and academic units can provide additional funds. Moving funds are not provided.
- If needed, funding for legal assistance associated with immigration is the responsibility of the academic unit. DEI will not be responsible for immigration paperwork.

Evaluation of Nominations

Evaluation of nominees will be based on academic accomplishments, evidence of nominee's demonstrated and sustained commitment to diversity and inclusion, a department's record of championing the scholarship and promoting the careers of underrepresented minorities and women faculty, nominee's promise for a tenure track appointment at UNM, the letter of support from the dean of the college associated with the nominating department, and the department's mentoring plan. If the nominee was initially identified in a national faculty search, and if main campus unit(s) choose(s) to hire the successful nominee as a tenure-track faculty member, the position may be eligible for DEI bridge funding designated for increasing proportions of faculty from U.S. underrepresented racial/ethnic minority groups.

FAQs

How will/should candidates be prioritized? The most important criterion will be the unit's willingness and demonstrated effectiveness to mentor, advocate for, and sponsor the candidate, not only to become an assistant professor but to put them on the trajectory to achieve tenure, promotion, and beyond, as demonstrated by custom-tailored plans for the nominee.

Can a single department (or school) submit more than one candidate? Yes. Must be main campus departments.

How does IE postdoc/scholars program address concerns about search committees potentially segregating applicants (by race/gender) in national searches? If a candidate competing for a national search is nominated, nominating department must outline their hiring criteria and criteria ultimately for tenure & promotion and provide evidence to show why one candidate was selected for the faculty position and why the prospective postdoc was not.

Is it possible to do this in multiple phases, so that units can get some assurance before asking their candidate(s) to prepare application materials (letter of interest, etc.)? No. If the prospective postdoc/scholar already submitted materials for a faculty search, that letter of interest would suffice. It is common to invite scholars to apply for postdoc positions before an institution knows they will be selected. And in fact, the prospective postdoc cannot apply directly for this program. It is the department's responsibility to nominate the prospective postdoc and submit all materials on their behalf. Of course materials will be prepared with the prospective postdoc's/scholar's input. The nomination process is as much about how prepared the unit is to invest in that emerging scholar as it is about the postdoc's/scholar's potential.
