Dr. Zvolensky is a Distinguished Professor in the Department of Psychology at University of Houston and Director of the Anxiety and Health Research Laboratory and Substance Use Treatment Clinic. He has published over 400 scholarly works on the co-occurrence of anxiety and stress-related psychopathology with substance use disorders. In this line of work, he also has examined the physical health and health behavior correlates of anxiety-substance use disorder comorbidity, including such conditions as HIV/AIDS, asthma, cardiac disease, and chronic pain.

Research Interests

- Comorbidity of emotional disorders (anxiety, stress, depressive disorders) with substance use disorders
- Transdiagnostic processes underlying emotional disorder-substance use disorder comorbidity
- Health Inequalities in psychopathology, addictive, and other health behaviors
- Mediating and moderating factors involved in the expression, onset, and maintenance of anxiety/depression psychopathology for groups subject to health inequalities
- Theoretically-driven and process-based treatment development work that is community friendly
