"This is one of the must see venues in DC. It's a joy to see the diverse representations of one nation's native cultures. Thank you." Seattle, WA

Display Ideas - We're Building Our Collection!

A beautiful arrangement of basketry, pottery and collectibles with miniatures and basketry organized together on top shelf.

Would you like to share photos of your home décor? We would love to see and share the variety of ways people display their collections and hope you will join in the "collection of display ideas."

Send in your photos that include some (or a lot!) of your American Indian artwork. This has been great for all of our patrons and artists who love to see how the arts are displayed in people's homes.

Check out more display ideas on our Pinterest board and keep sending yours in to us! All display photos will be posted anonymously. Thank you for participating and sharing your ideas!

Store Hours

Well, here we are in February already! While the winter season is halfway over and the daylight is extending longer, it seems most of us are still bundled up inside, staying warm and cozy with indoor activities.

With February also comes our Winter Sale so we do hope you will find something to love (or to give your love on Valentine's Day) over the next couple of weeks.

There Are Always New Arrivals At The Shop!

WE HAVE A GREAT SELECTION FOR YOU AND A GREAT "MUSEUM-LIKE" EXPERIENCE TOO!

There are always new arrivals at the Shop as we continue to keep the wheels turning for American Indian artists across the country. We also remind our visitors that the Shop can be a museum experience for you as well. Every piece has a story and we are happy to share what we know... and often we learn from you!

New pottery by Titus Davis (Acoma).

It's always best if you can come in to visit to see our complete collection and we also regularly work to add new selections to the online store. We encourage you to check the New Additions page often, and if you're not able to make it in, please email us and we'll be happy to help with photos of work and special requests.
