

The Junior League of Asheville, one of Buncombe County's oldest women-led volunteer organizations, will host their 2nd annual Volunteer Expo on February 9, 2019 at the Crowne Plaza Expo Center. The event will open at 10:00 AM and conclude at 3:00 PM.

Modeled after a job fair, the Volunteer Expo is an opportunity for residents of Western North Carolina to learn about local nonprofits, their volunteer needs, and other ways to support these organizations. To make this event a success, the League is pleased to partner with over 70 local nonprofits, including organizations that specialize in addressing health, poverty, legal aid, environmental stewardship, women's issues, arts, civic leadership, technology, education, and animal welfare.

In addition to learning about local nonprofit organizations and exploring volunteer opportunities with these organizations, Volunteer Expo attendees can attend two educational panels discussions. The panels will provide insight into our community and the challenges we face in Western North Carolina.

Local nonprofits are an incredible asset to our community and are responsible for much of Buncombe County's progress. We believe that the Volunteer Expo will be a great opportunity for Western North Carolina residents to connect with outstanding nonprofit organizations, learn about what they are doing, and how they can contribute (time, talent, or treasure).
