My presentation focuses on different issues confronting employers in the safety area. I willdiscuss two points on fall protection that apply to all employers. I will also discuss the recently proposed heat injury and illness prevention standard and how it will change (if it goes into effect as scheduled) the way employers will have to look at heat illness prevention. This proposed rule will touch all employers, no matter their industry. From there I will move into accident investigation do’s and don’ts. This part of my presentation centers around the purpose of accident investigations and how many employers miss the opportunity to prevent future accidents. I will end with practical advice and “what a safety director should know” about his employees and work sites.
