

Navigating Conflict Workshops

SARM, through the Pest Biosecurity Program, is hosting four, one-day Navigating Conflict workshops in December 2025. The Dispute Resolution Office of the Ministry of Justice are working with us once again to facilitate the interactive workshops.

Navigating Conflict is an interactive training designed to help participants more confidently navigate challenging conversations, competing interests, and high-stakes decisions. It builds on your existing experience and introduces practical tools to help you stay grounded, communicate effectively, and guide conflict toward constructive outcomes.

Whether you're leading teams, engaging with the public, or managing complex stakeholder relationships, this workshop will help you navigate conflict with clarity, confidence, and purpose.

Workshops are open to RM and FN appointed and elected officials, Administrators, support staff and RM public works employees.

Registration is required and space is limited each day.

Register early to save your seat for your preferred day. Don't miss this valuable and engaging learning opportunity. Doors open at 7:30 am. Each one-day workshop is free to attend and will run 8:00 am to 4:00 pm with lunch included.

You don't want to miss these great interactive workshops. Check out some of the participant feedback from the Navigating Conflict workshops held in 2023:

- "... everyone was very interactive, a lot of feedback, back and forth. Was extremely productive."
- "Was great with smaller class size so there could be more personal input."
- "I enjoyed learning how one word can change how someone may react, and how body language can greatly influence a conversation."
