"Upgrading Decision Quality (DQ) from a business skill to a life skill."

KEYNOTE SPEAKER: Jean-Paul Koninx, Decision Qraft

ABSTRACT: Decision Quality as concept touches on many analytical and psychological areas - it is fascinatingly human. And, while recognising both the analytical and behavioural sides, most of us see DQ as a great business skill. If only all of us (i.e. our managers, our organisation) would adopt it, right? So why isn't DQ as a tool spreading like wildfire in our organisations?

In this presentation I will share some observations of my own 24-year DA/DQ journey, many of those years it was "just" a neat analytical business skill. And I propose that a key to further Organisational DQ is to embrace DQ as a life skill. Which raises the question - what are the key triggers to make that pivot?

MEET OUR SPEAKER

DQ. DECISIONQRAFT

Jean-Paul Koninx is the founder of DecisionQraft, a company dedicated to bringing decision skills to companies and the wider society. Decision-making under uncertainty has been a common theme in his 30-year career, most of these with Shell as a Petroleum Engineer, in both technical and leadership roles across many locations worldwide – including six years with Norske Shell in Stavanger. Jean-Paul is Lead Practitioner for the SDP (Society of Decision Professionals) as well as Chartered Project Professional with APM (Association for Project Management). He holds a PhD in Astrophysics from Utrecht University in the Netherlands.
